PARENTING CLASSES BEGIN!

2020 has been quite the year! We are all facing constant changes in our lives. Despite the restrictions of COVID-19, we are excited that we will be able to offer parenting classes this fall!

We are committed to offering classes in a safe way, so there will be a few changes. Unfortunately, we will not be able to meet the requirements to offer free childcare. I know this is a HUGE factor for many people who attend the classes.

Thankfully, the Love and Logic Institute is allowing us to offer the classes online this semester, so we are grateful that we will have that option! If you are one that cannot attend without free childcare, maybe you can try the online class!

The other big change is that we will be following social distancing guidelines. Therefore, there will be a limit of 10 individuals or couples for the Meet and Eat Class. In the past, it has been so handy for couples to drop in when it works. This semester, we ask that you please register, and commit to attending most classes.

Go to www.familiesfirstofpella.org for more information about classes and to register! Dates and times are listed in the blue box to the left.

Thank you,
Allison Kerndt
